

Brittney Dillon serves as the Director of Operations for the Division of Business Development at the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development, where she oversees the operations of key business lending and grant programs that support small businesses and drive community revitalization across the state. She helps support programs such as Neighborhood BusinessWorks (NBW) and federally funded initiatives like the State Small Business Credit Initiative (SSBCI). Brittney has also supported the implementation of grants like NourishMD, helping expand access to fresh food in communities experiencing food insecurity. In addition to her role at DHCD, Brittney serves on the Maryland Rural Health Transformation Committee and holds a Bachelor of Science from Virginia State University.