

Tamika Chance is the Founder and Chief Executive Officer of T12 Technologies. She established her company to assist small and medium organizations with recognizing their potential for modernizing their Information Technology (IT) environments using cloud platforms, automated business processes, and cybersecurity practices to propel their business growth. Her company is known as a Managed Service Provider who implements IT services, support, and staffing for all types of industries. Additionally, she provides consulting and solutions that lead to enhanced or improved supply and logistics operational practices that target an increase in asset accountability from procurement to disposal.

Tamika served 20 years in the U.S. Air Force as vision-minded leader focused on strategically aligning tasks to the mission and 10 years of government contract services for the US Department of Transportation, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, and the Pentagon. Her expertise consisted of managing and maintaining IT and communications technologies, cybersecurity, supply chain and logistics.

She earned a bachelor's degree in business administration and has been recognized for several outstanding achievements. She currently serves on the Charles County Chamber of Commerce, Business and Education Committee, a graduate of the Nasdaq Entrepreneurial Center/Milestone Circles Alumnae, and a National Veteran's Institute or Procurement (VIP) graduate, member the College of Southern Maryland's Innovation and Research Board and College of Southern Maryland's Center for Career Development and Success Advisory Council.
