Community Services:	UPDATE INFORMATION ON UME, PROGRAMMING 4-27-2020 Since the establishment of Extension services in 1914, agents have provided science-based education in Family and Consumer Sciences (FCS). The knowledge and advice FCS agents deliver to their communities include practical home economics, nutrition, health, and financial wellness -- all topics of considerable importance during the current stay-at-home order, and for anyone trying to maintain a healthy, secure lifestyle in today's society. The University of Maryland Extension FCS team has quickly pivoted programming to online formats to help families across the state maintain their finances, well-being, and levels of stress during these uncertain times. We're pleased to share some of the great programming we are offering virtually across Maryland.

Many are accepting this as the new normal for them. Fear is still heightened about contracting this virus and taking it home to their loved ones. Now that we employees who have tested positive for COVID-19, there is a new sense of caution. Some are starting to reconcile that they are doing all they can to protect themselves while others are still worried they are not. The employee who was removed from service under duress has returned to service with guidance from mental health. This employee will continue to be monitored.
